

This version of the trading system has significantly improved statistics for all major currency pairs in aggregate

Initial conditions for trades remain unchanged

An important and key addition is taking into account the maximum volume for the accumulation area:

For buy transactions, taking into account the maximum volume that is located above the accumulation area

For sell transactions, accordingly, taking into account the maximum volume of the accumulation area below

If the daily price close is above the accumulation area and the last high volume that passes above the bullish (blue) area, the conditions are met to buy

If the daily close is below the accumulation area and the last high volume that passes below the bearish (red) area, the conditions are met for a sell

With this option, the outcome of the deal is close to 100%

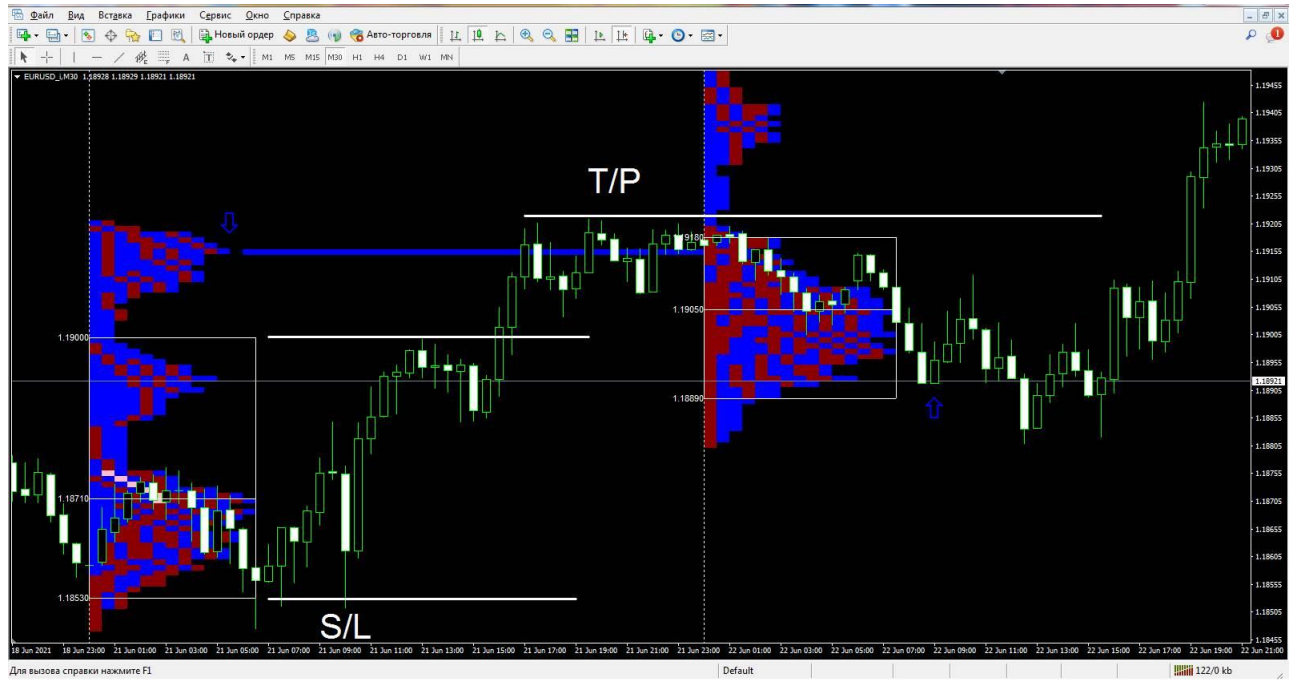

It can be used in its pure form or combined with the observance of the risk-profit ratio of 1:1 and higher
